The future of investing is in alternative assets.

That's the of a recent study by Cambridge Associates, which found that alternative assets are expected to outperform traditional investments over the next decade.

Alternative assets are investments that are not stocks, bonds, or cash. They include things like private equity, venture capital, real estate, and commodities.

There are a number of reasons why alternative assets are expected to outperform traditional investments.

- They are not as correlated to the stock market. This means that they can provide diversification to your portfolio and reduce your overall risk.
- They have the potential to generate higher returns. Alternative assets have outperformed traditional investments over the long term.
- They are becoming more accessible. In the past, alternative assets were only available to institutional investors. However, they are now becoming more accessible to individual investors.

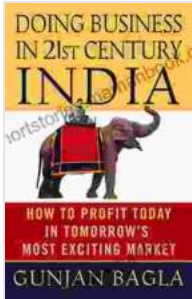

If you are looking to profit from the future of investing, then you should consider investing in alternative assets.

Here are a few tips for getting started:

- Do your research. There are a number of different types of alternative assets, so it is important to do your research and find the ones that are right for you.
- Start small. You don't have to invest a lot of money in alternative assets to get started. You can start with a small investment and gradually increase your exposure over time.
- Be patient. Alternative assets can be volatile, so it is important to be patient and ride out the ups and downs. Over the long term, they have the potential to generate higher returns than traditional investments.
