The Genesis of a Visionary: Carlos Garcia Egures' Early Life

Carlos Garcia Egures, the visionary behind Luke Inclusive Storytelling, was born in the Basque Country of Spain in 1967. Growing up with cerebral palsy, he faced numerous challenges and barriers that ignited a deep-seated passion within him to fight for the rights and representation of people with disabilities.

Despite the adversity he encountered, Carlos pursued his education with unwavering determination. He earned a degree in sociology from the Complutense University of Madrid and went on to study at the University of California, Berkeley, where he delved into the field of disability studies.

The Birth of Luke Inclusive Storytelling: A Paradigm Shift in Media Representation

In 2005, Carlos Garcia Egures founded Luke Inclusive Storytelling, a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting disability representation and inclusive storytelling in the media. The organization's name is a poignant tribute to Carlos's younger brother, Luke, who passed away at the age of six due to a rare genetic disorder.

Luke Inclusive Storytelling's mission is to challenge stereotypes, promote authentic representation, and empower marginalized communities through the power of storytelling. The organization has played a pivotal role in advocating for disability rights and social justice, working closely with media outlets, filmmakers, and storytellers to create inclusive content that reflects the diverse experiences of people with disabilities.
